Note: Candles for Shabbat and Yom Kippur must be lit before sunset. If the candles are not lit before sunset, it is better not to light, because it is forbidden to light candles once Shabbat has started. Candles for holidays, however, may be lit after sunset, so long as it is not Shabbat.

* A new flame may not be lit on a holiday. Rather, fire is taken from a flame that was lit prior to the start of the holiday, such as a long-burning candle or a pilot light. Fire can then be passed from the new candle as well. When lighting Saturday night, fire is taken from a flame lit prior to the start of Shabbat.
